

DC Neighborhood Circulation Study

What is the Neighborhood Circulation Study?

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA), in partnership with the District Department of Transportation (DDOT), wants to enhance bus service through District neighborhoods. Currently, many District of Columbia neighborhoods lack efficient surface transit circulation to support mobility and accessibility; neighborhood-to-neighborhood connectivity; and District-wide economic development goals. The focus of this study is to:

- Identify current deficiencies in neighborhood transit connectivity;
- Improve local bus services to enhance neighborhood circulation as well as connectivity;
- Identify new neighborhood services which will enhance circulation and connectivity; and,
- Complement the long-range growth of DC's transit system.

How can you get involved in the study?

WMATA and DDOT understand that residents are the most important part of the study. In this 2nd Project meeting we will update the community on the findings of the study and potential connectivity improvements. Please come to one of the community meetings and let us know how we can better serve you. All meetings begin at 6:30pm with open house. Presentation starts at 7:00pm. The facilities are handicapped accessible, but if you have special needs or questions, please call the project hotline at 202-561-3700 or visit www.dcgatinvolved.com/circulationstudy.
